In July 2018 the New York State passed a law requiring instruction in mental health to all elementary, middle and high school students. Please join us for a conversation with Amy Molloy from New York State's Mental Health Resource and Training Center. Ms. Malloy will link the importance of social and emotional learning with the components of the newly mandated and revised health requirements. She will also identify opportunities to enhance mental health awareness to promote a climate and culture of wellness for students, families and school personnel as well as offer ways to map the guidelines into existing curriculum in your schools.

NYASP and WCPA members are admitted without charge
Non-member fee $15.00 (cash or checks only)
